- 1. Soviet Army troops are billeted in a large barracks unit located about 1.7 km west of the Vladimir Volynsk (Vladymyr Volynsk) (N 50-50, E 24-20) railroad station. The barracks are built of red brick and are four to five stories high. The buildings are about 50 meters long and are situated approximately 50 meters from the road. On the south side of the road, opposite the barracks, there are several units of officers' living quarters and a club.
- 2. Another large group of barracks, four to five stories high, is located about one kilometer north of Vladimir Volynsk on both sides of a basalt road. These barracks are also built of red brick and are approximately 50 meters long. The new barracks, built by the Soviets, are located beside the old barracks on the west side of the basalt road.
- 3. Some pillboxes are located north of the new barracks which the Soviets built. Before World War II, the Polish Army used these pillboxes to store explosives and ammunition.
